Viticulture & Soil

The Murray Darling wine region in Victoria, Australia, is blessed with sunny days, starry skies, and fertile soils. This Mediterranean-like climate, with dry summers and mild winters, minimizes disease pressure and promotes healthy vine growth. Drip irrigation supports the vines, while careful canopy management protects the fruit and enhances ripening. The property's east-west running vines, combined with its gentle undulations, create unique microclimates that further enrich the growing conditions of the grapes. Nestled within a sweeping bend of the Murray River, the river serves as both a vital water source and a source of inspiration.

At Zilzie, sustainability is integral to the winery's culture, with initiatives to reduce carbon emissions, achieve 100% renewable energy by 2027, and optimize water usage through effective management practices.

Winemaking

Courtney's minimal intervention winemaking philosophy emphasizes showcasing the terroir and the fruit. The grapes are picked at 24 Brix and fermented at 73°F. The selected yeast, RC212, facilitates a robust fermentation, followed by malolactic fermentation to enhance complexity. A judicious use of oak enhances the fruit character without overshadowing it, making it perfect for early enjoyment.

About the Winemaker

Born and raised in Victoria, Australia, Courtney's love for wine has always been a part of her life. It wasn't until she joined Zilzie, nearly a decade ago, that she truly uncovered her passion for winemaking.

Inspired by her first vintage, she enrolled in university to pursue formal training as a Winemaker. With the guidance of exceptional mentors within the team, Courtney now oversees the production of Zilzie's renowned Pinot Noir.
